The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in cooperation with local fair housing organizations will host a one-day training session (9:00 – 4:00) to assist service organizations and individuals in the Inland Empire to better understand housing discrimination issues affecting immigrant communities. Participants will learn how to identify, how to help and how to refer victims of housing discrimination, for assistance.

The proposed location is conveniently located and parking will be free:

Stewarts Boathouse/Lakeside Room
in Fairmount Park
2601 Fairmount Blvd., Riverside, CA, 92501

HUD's Assistant Secretary for Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity, John Trasviña, will address participants, including civil rights and immigrant service organization representatives. The training session will cover topics such as Fair Housing Law 101; National Origin discrimination and its relation to immigration status; an overview of Title VI, "Limited English Proficiency" guidelines for federally funded programs; and a discussion of local fair housing and civil rights issues facing immigrant communities.

Additional details and a formal invitation will follow. If you have any questions please contact Ms. Ana L. Gutierrez from, FHEO, Los Angeles HUD Office at (213) 534-2594.
